

Postgraduate and Research

MA TESOL (Delivered in Japan or other countries)

Back to Taught Postgraduate List

The MA TESOL examines the critical connections between theory and practice in relation to the following areas:

- Models of language description and key methods and concepts of linguistic analysis.
- The role of English as an international language.
- The principles and practices of contemporary and past approaches to TESOL.
- The design and evaluation of learning and teaching materials for TESOL
- The ways in which contextual and cultural factors affect knowledge and practice in TESOL.
- TESOL in a global context.
- Research approaches relevant to the TESOL practitioner-researcher.

These issues are structured according to the following modular stages:

Postgraduate Certificate (TESOL)

MA TESOL

Completion of the previous modules and a 15,000-word dissertation.

Duration

1 Year (September to September)

Why This Course?

- Teachers are often too busy to take time off to study at postgraduate level - so can study in-country
- E-supervision of modules
- Helps teachers meet the needs of language professionals working in a variety of educational contexts.

Host partners for the MA TESOL

This course is not run at the Chichester or Bognor Regis campuses at the time of printing. The course is delivered in-country. To host the MA TESOL, you should be an educational organisation, which has a clear professional purpose in relation to the training and development of language teachers (eg Ministries of Education, Language School Organisations, Teachers' Associations, Colleges and Schools). Contact Ian Forth, Programme Co-ordinator (details opposite) to discuss hosting the MA TESOL.

Entry Requirements

A first degree or approved professional qualification.

A minimum of two years of suitable teaching experience.

A student whose first language is not English should have IELTS 6.0 or above or an equivalent indication of language proficiency.
